Three Princesses Vie For Queen

Homecoming Princesses Lea Bair, Barbara Gibson and Julie Voelker will vie for the honor of queen during today's general elections.

The three finalists were announced at the Classics IV concert before 1,500 people Monday night in the Fielhouse. Elections Friday narrowed the field from 14 contestants sponsored by various living groups to the three finalists.

The queen will be announced Friday at 8:30 p.m. after a concert by Eastern's band in front of the Student Union Building. The queen will reign with her two princesses throughout Homecoming week, which ends Saturday with a football game against Whitworth and a dance at the Davenport Hotel in Spokane.

EDITORIAL CLARIFIED

Last week, The Easterner's editorial policy was defined as being concerned primarily with local issues and events as opposed to covering national topics.

It now becomes apparent this policy needs clarification. This does not mean The Easterner intends to become an ostrich over events that appear in the national media, nor does it mean The Easterner will not comment editorially on events of national importance.

It does mean that any comment on national issues, or any coverage of them on the news pages, will be restricted to local application. A case in point is the story in this week's issue on a national issue, the Middle East situation, as viewed by a professor of Eastern's political science department.

As citizens of the United States, all students are naturally affected by anything Congress or the Nixon Administration does. But if The Easterner were to attempt to give national events full coverage, more resources would be needed than are available to the student press.

Well informed students, if they are as interested in national events as they sometimes say they are, should be expected to rely on professional news sources who specialize in national coverage.

WORKSHOP LAUDED

Last week Washington State University held a series of workshops on racism with great success. Their effort in trying to discuss the topic openly is very commendable.

Two WSU students tried to get a court injunction to keep the university from canceling classes for the workshops. Although there is no question the two had the right to seek the injunction, their action came at a poor time, possibly holding down attendance at the workshops.

Canceling classes for the workshops at WSU came under fire from individuals and a political candidate which is too bad. Institutions of higher learning are set up for educational purposes. Learning more about racism in our country certainly warrants time off from classes to gain some knowledge on issues that should be of vital interest to everyone.

The administration and students of WSU with the foresight to hold such workshops produced a commendable effort toward reaching a solution to racism that has been swept under the carpet far too long.

QUESTION: Recently I've noticed that my skin turns black where it is in contact with gold jewelry. I am not dirty and it isn't "cheap" gold.

Is there anything I can do to prevent this ugly reaction? I have stopped wearing jewelry that touches my skin, but I miss my ring.

ANSWER: Gold jewelry contains other metals in addition to gold to create the proper color, hardness and durability. Often, there is copper in gold, even the expensive type.

I can't think of an easy way to change the composition of your sweat, but you might try cleaning your jewelry with soap and water and coating the surface that contacts your skin with clear nail polish.

QUESTION: By the end of the school year I will have reached the age of 21. I have a little "peach fuzz" but it isn't thick enough or doesn't grow fast enough to be grown into a mustache, beard or even sideburns.

Is there any way to speed up the growth of facial hair?

ANSWER: The amount of body hair a person has is genetically determined.

I know of no way to encourage the growth of facial hair. True desperation has led a few brave souls to seek hair transplants on their face. This successful technique for certain types of baldness is not generally recommended for beards or mustaches.

QUESTION: My husband and I would like to sell our bodies to science so that when we die, research or transplants could be performed. Could you please tell us where to write to obtain information?

ANSWER: Donating one's body or selective parts to science is one of the more noble things a person can do. For many years it has been possible to transplant the cornea to another person and restore vision.

The use of cadaver skin and bone has also been successful and is widely used. Kidney transplants have improved in recent years and we all know of the attention that experimental heart transplants have been receiving.

You need to carry a card with you indicating a desire to donate your body or selective parts of your body to science when you die. A uniform donor card is available for this purpose. Write to your state or county medical society for further information. One does not get paid for this type of generosity.

Anti Swimming

Editor,

With respect to the proposed alterations of general college requirements recently given favorable consideration by the Undergraduate Affairs Council, I feel the following points may be germane:

1) The level of swimming ability desired by any student at Eastern can be attained by that student through his own efforts. In any event, I doubt there is a striking correlation between swimming proficiency and academic competence.

2) Those interested in aerobics can (and no doubt do) garner enough information for their satisfaction in the Reader's Digest or similar sources.

3) The condition of a student's body (providing it be viable) would not seem to be a crucial and valid concern of the college.

From the above and various other less polite considerations relating to the odor of perspiration (and held only as personal preferences) I am tempted to conclude:

1) Physical education, like library science, is fine for those who wish to take it but does not constitute one of the sine qua nons of higher education.

2) The length of time required to drown me, whether greater or lesser than an arbitrary limit, is my own concern.

I do appreciate the regard for my well being the Health, Physical Education and Recreation department displays, but would enjoy establishing my own standards in this area nonetheless.

I feel, therefore, that we are perhaps (pending action by the Academic Senate) about to take a step in the right direction. What I would like to know is: who (and how) determines proficiency in recreational sports (vice a versa "framework")?

Sincerely,
Bruce R. Thomas

Vietnam View

Editor,

Three months at Don Duong, South Vietnam have made somewhat of a superpatriot out of me.

The dirt floored shacks, the ever-present flies and garbage, the discriminations against the Mountain yards, the extreme poverty, the constant VC terrorisms, the tendency to resort to violence rather than law or logic during disputes, the semi-literate state of most of the people and all the other things that make this beautiful country a near-hell for so many people, leave me with one thought — a wish that every American, especially the student radicals who love to damn the American way of life, could spend a few weeks in Vietnam or a similar country.

Only then would most of our people realize the value of our educational systems, the importance of law and order rather than violence, the benefits of our system of industrial capitalism and property rights, and the greatness of our freedom-enjoying people.

Ethics Doubted

Editor,

Why was the physical education requirement issue brought up on the Undergraduate Affairs Council behind the backs of the representative of that department?

On September 21, the P.E. representatives were told that November 1, would be the date for discussion about P.E. requirements. On September 22, while these representatives were at a separate meeting, the P.E. requirement issue was brought up and re-recommendations, including no credit for P.E. courses, were passed.

One of the reasons being, to answer requests made by a number of students. The unethical actions of this council cause me to wonder if their reasons are not also unethical.

1. Are personal or departmental conflicts involved here and conveniently placed under the heading of student unrest? As a

CHANGES ENDORSED

Most college people, including department heads, say they do not seriously consider one specific college course as being inherently better or more essential to a student's education than all the other courses offered in the curriculum.

Under Eastern's present system of requiring courses, however, this is definitely implied by the institution. A quick check of the current college catalogue points out that psychology 101 and physical education 115 are evidently sine qua non in every student's educational process.

One wonders why these courses and other specifically named courses are not required at all equally prestigious institutions around the nation.

The stated theory behind the original college requirements was to give the student exposure to a wide range of subject areas outside his major field of study. A noble intent, to be sure, but are the means the most effective that we can devise? Not according to contemporary educational philosophy. Enter the "Proposal on General College Requirements."

Under the new proposal the student would accomplish the same objective, exposure to several subject areas, but the proposal would allow for individual differences and preferences.

The student has the latitude under it to pursue an interesting area beyond the 100 level while fulfilling his requirements, not in spite of them.

The current proposal on general college requirements is an excellent one. It is a talked out, thought out and researched idea. It deserves your support

Two Campus Streets Due For Vacating

Two more streets at Eastern may be vacated by the City of Cheney in a continuing move toward a closed central campus.

"The college will request that the Cheney City Council vacate 9th Street, from D Street to F Street, and F Street, from 7th Street to 9th Street," said Dr. Wayne Loomis, director of facilities planning.

He would not say exactly when the request would be made but expressed hope Eastern could gain control of the streets within the next few weeks.

A portion of "F" Street in front of the Science Building, from 9th to 10th, has already been vacated in this manner. "D" Street, from 8th to 9th, has been closed after first being vacated by Cheney.

Vacating of 9th and F Streets would not mean their immediate closure to vehicular traffic, said Dr. Loomis. He noted that construction is still going on and 9th Street and the two portions of F Street would not be closed until sometime next spring or summer.

Both 9th and F Streets would be closed to vehicular traffic because of the increased foot traffic crossing them, noted Dr. Loomis.

After the two streets are closed, Dr. Loomis said, "we hope to obtain state funds to build a people oriented mall in the area behind Patterson Hall."

If funds become available, Dr. Loomis said, the rectangular-shaped mall would be planned for the area bordered by Kennedy Library, Tawanka Commons, Patterson Hall and Pence Union Building.

Solution To Parking Problem Possible

A 400-car parking lot is due for completion this quarter to help alleviate Eastern's growing parking problem. Construction of additional lots are being considered for the next two or three years and for commuter bus service is planned.

With increased enrollment this year and closing of three streets in the central campus area the additional parking spaces will help, said Dr. Wayne Loomis, director of facilities planning.

Streets due for closure by summer are 9th, from "D" to "F", and "F" Street, from 7th to 10th. Already closed is "D" Street, from 8th to 9th, in front of the Student Union Building.

With the closure of the other two streets, between Patterson Hall

$75 Reward Is Offered

A reward of $75 has been offered for information leading to the return of a 35 millimeter camera missing from the Kinnikinick office, said John Allen, head yearbook photographer.

A Nikon FTN, valued at nearly $450 has been missing since Tuesday, September 29. Because of registered serial numbers on both camera and lens, sale of the camera would be difficult he said, and would inevitably lead to detection.

Anyone with information concerning the camera should contact the Kinnikinick staff in room 204, Student Union Building, 359-7172, Allen said, or the Campus Safety office, Showalter.

Homecoming this year, with a theme of "Scarborough Fair," will include all of the traditional games and contests, with an added attraction—a carnival.

The carnival rides near Patterson Hall are this year's substitute to the parade of past years, said Mike Moore, Homecoming chairman.

Dorms will be judged Friday for their decorations and the winners will be announced at Friday's concert.

Other contests include the selection of Miss Watermelon Bust by the Intercollegiate Knights, the car key hunt sponsored by Streeter Hall (find the keys and win possession of a 1971 car for Friday night and Saturday), pillow fight over a mudhole tricycle race, Volkswagen stuffing, bed race, powder puff football game and more.

Contests run from 2:30 every afternoon through Friday, and the carnival opens each evening. At 9:30 p.m. Friday, the cheerleaders will sponsor a pep rally and bonfire by Woodward Field in preparation for Saturday's game and Pence Union Building and between Patterson and Kennedy Library, the central part of the campus will be closed to all but emergency and delivery vehicles.

There will be 76 parking spaces eliminated by the closures, said Allen Shaw, director of campus safety, but these will be compensated for by the addition of new parking lots.

The new 400-space parking lot will be located at the corner of 7th and Washington Streets at the Northwest corner of the campus. No fees will be charged for its use, said Dr. Loomis.

Internships Are Possible

In order to encourage more students to gain practical experience in government and in government-related organizations, the political science department is attempting to develop and expand a public affairs internship program, said Dr. Niel Zimmerman, assistant professor of political science.

Internships are offered as three-credit courses through the political science department. The program will allow the student to gain practical experience, to make a close personal examination and evaluation of the workings of different political and governmental organizations, and perhaps to make contacts for future employment, said Dr. Zimmerman.

The student intern would be asked to work at certain tasks within an agency and would in turn have the opportunity to observe the internal workings of that agency.

In the past interns have been "With the filling of land behind Woodward Field being done we could conceivably make a 600 to 800-space parking lot in two or three years after the dirt settles," said Dr. Loomis.

Along with additional parking lots, he said, the parking problem could be eased by use of a commuter bus service being proposed by Eastern and the Spokane Transit Authority.

"The effect a bus service would have on the number of cars is only guess work right now, however," he said.

placed with a number of different agencies and organizations. These have included the offices of the State Attorney General, the County Prosecutor, the Spokane City Manager, the Social Security Administration, and various active interest groups. The placement of future interns in an even wider range of city, county, state and national government offices is possible, said Dr. Zimmerman.

Undergrad-PE Dispute Aired

The proposal to drop credit for physical education activities has been deferred by the Undergraduate Affairs Council until a compromise can be worked out between Dr. Henry-York Steiner, dean of undergraduate affairs, and the HPE department.

The proposal is part of a larger proposal passed by the council last week to revise general college requirements. A controversy arose when members of the HPERA department expressed the feeling that the council acted on the matter without consulting department personnel.

Yesterday's move also requests the Academic Senate, to whom the original proposal has already been sent, to defer action until recommendations from Dr. Steiner and the curriculum committee of the HPERA department have been received.

At a two-day session, September 21-22, the council discussed the possibility of changing general college requirements. During the first day of that meeting Dr. Steiner presented his working plan for revision of general requirements. All that was decided at that meeting on P.E.

requirements, said Dr. Steiner, is that the requirements should not remain as they are.

During the second day of the discussions, academic credit was withdrawn for P.E. activities. Two member of the P.E. department had been on hand for the first day of discussions but were not present for the second day.

Dr. Steiner said, "The P.E. department seems to have misunderstood the action of the council during the first-day of the meeting. At that time it was decided I should get together with personnel from P.E. to draw up a proposal by November 1. They evidently thought no action would be taken until after I talked with them."

Dr. Jack Leighton, director of health, physical education and recreation, said he sent a memo to Dr. Philip Marshall, dean of academic affairs, expressing his feelings on the matter. Concerning the Undergraduate Affairs Council action he said, "I thought after the first day of the session in September that no further action would be taken until November 1."

Athletic Policy Statement Changes Recommended

Recommended changes in the Athletic Policy Statement have been sent from the Associated Students to the Board of Trustees, who will consider the matter at their monthly meeting Friday.

Changes requested by Council include a speed up of the time involved in the appeals procedure, clarification of the section on financial aid to athletes and a change in athletic awards.

The most significant of the changes is perhaps the financial aid section. Council members apparently felt the policy statement section allowing funds for athletic grants-in-aid to be "raised through public solicitation" and awarded only to athletes was in conflict with Evergreen conference rules.

Evco rules state, "Financial aid to athletes shall be granted on the same basis as are similar awards to any student and shall be paid from usual collective funds by the usual collective agency."

Council members arguing for the recommended change felt a special fund for athletic grants-in-aid gave athletes special preference if they were unable to obtain financial aid through the financial aids office.

The change in athletic awards is the addition of a statement that, "No awards of a transferrable monetary value be given."

This change was prompted by a state law prohibiting gifts purchased by state funds, said A.S. Executive Vice President Bruce Ellis.

Whether this will affect awards of letter jackets, coats and college blankets to lettermen will depend on legal decisions in the courts, Ellis said.

The policy statement is scheduled to be brought up at the meeting of the Board of Trustees, who have tabled the proposal since last year until recommendations from all interested parties could be considered.

Prof Views Middle East

With Nasser gone, the situation in the Middle East will become less stabilized since Nasser was the stabilizing cue who could prophesy direction for the Arab nations, said Dr. George Durrie, political science department.

"Nasser, being the most charismatic of the Arab leaders, was the only leader who could impose the nationalistic idea of Pan-Arabism in the Arabic peoples," Durrie said.

Since 1952, no formal organization, notably the United Arab Republic, has ever succeeded in unifying the Arab nations because of incompatible personalities at the nations' heads, he said. Only Nasser had some informal effect of invoking Arab unity through mobilization of sentiment, as Pan-Arabism's anti-Israel appeal.

"The possibility now exists that, for the first time, the Arab countries are put in the situation that no one has the power to invoke the Pan-Arabism that made Nasser so successful," Durrie said. "This is significant in that there is no Arab unity against Israel, though some exists on an individual basis, but no one Arab nation will take on Israel alone."

On the involvement of the world powers, Nasser had a bargaining position with the Soviet Bloc. But now there is uncertainty on what kind of foothold the USSR will take, he said.

"It is awfully hard to see increased U.S. involvement at this time," Durrie said. "However, we are committed to the concept of a peaceful Mediterranean."

Usher Speaks On Education

A three day symposium with the theme, "Education in the 70's" will begin on October 20 in the Science Auditorium at 3:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Dr. Richard Usher, associate professor of psychology, University of Northern Colorado.

Dr. Usher will speak on "Education in the Contemporary World," "Research in Teacher Effectiveness" and "The Teacher and the Individual Child."

Usher attended the University of Florida and served as a research colleague to Arthur W. Combs, "an internationally recognized authority in education. Combs has credited Usher as being one of the outstanding young psychologists involved in education today."

Usher has addressed various state and national educational conventions, as well as serving as a consultant to the Mott Foundation, Flint, Michigan; Denver Public Schools, Tacoma Public Schools and Montana Personnel and Guidance Association.

Egypt will be significant in what kind of bargaining position it will have with the Soviets, he said.

"The cease-fire settlement between the Jordanian guerillas and King Hussein was good," Durrie said. "In that it gave a positive foothold for the guerillas and resulted in government-guerilla cooperation."

The guerillas were concerned about the political situation but nothing important has been done. The Arab nations need a means of getting their elements together and the world powers getting together in the Arab situation, he said.

"There is a reluctance by the more moderate Arab nations of Sudan, Tunisia and Lebanon, to mobilize against Israel in a holy war," Durrie said. "None have committed themselves militarily."

The basic difficulty in the Arab countries is to promote Pan-Arabism and anti-Israel sentiment as well as Nasser was able to do. Now domestic reforms can not be overlooked any longer, he said.

A.S. Constitution To Go To Voters

Ratification of a new constitution for the Associated Students will be sought next Wednesday during the general student elections.

A.S. Council approved the proposed draft at Thursday's meeting, following two weeks of public hearings.

If adopted by the students the new constitution will change A.S. Council by replacing representation by individual living groups with representation by living area. Rather than each dorm electing their own council members, apportionment would be based on three districts: On Campus, Off Campus, and Spokane.

The constitution also includes a student rights, responsibilities and conduct code.

This section says students shall have "the same rights as other citizens and surrender none of those by becoming members of the academic community."

Drafted by the A.S. Executive Vice President Bruce Ellis, the constitution will go into effect

January 1, 1971, if approved by the students.

"The most important thing is to get students out to vote," said Ellis. The current constitution requires a majority vote of at least 25 per cent of the Associated Students before the constitution can be approved.

With a current enrollment of full fee paying students of 6,334, this requires at least 1,584 votes be cast.

Other council action includes selection of alumni project recommendations, selection of a faculty advisor and appointment of students to various student committees.

Appointments included Bruce Ellis to Undergrad Affairs Council, Jum Sundberg, A. S. attorney general, Tom Moore and Sue Richstein, judicial board, Jeff Jordan, Sue Saling, Dave Whitmarsh and Barbara Thain, elections committee, and Trudi Altig and Dennis Brant to the publications commission.

Abortion Topic Of Speakers

Hawaii State Senator Vincent H. Yano will speak at Eastern Friday in Kennedy Auditorium at 12:40 p.m. on abortion reform.

The talk is sponsored by the Campus Environmental Action Committee, said Chairman Dan Kelly.

The committee will also sponsor Dr. Thomas Reed, chairman of the Spokane abortion reform committee. Dr. Reed will speak tomorrow at 7 p.m. in Kennedy Auditorium.

Eastern Students Serve As Tutors

"Eastern tutors are surprisingly excited about the new tutorial service they are providing for the students of Spokane," said Coral "Corky" V. Hammond, an Eastern graduate fellow in psychology, and supervisor of the tutors in the Community Tutorial Program.

Coordinated through the office of Dr. Clay Jorgenson, director of the Community Mental Health Center, the Community Tutorial Program was started last January as a pilot program and expanded this fall, Hammond said. The program provides needed help in studies for elementary school, junior and senior high school students of Spokane. There is no charge for the service.

"We are tutoring students that range in age from seven to fifteen years old. Math and reading are the subjects that most of the students need help in, but we do tutor all subjects. When we first started in September, we had approximately 10 tutorial sessions a week. This tripled in two weeks and we expect it to triple again in the next few weeks," Hammond said.

The tutors work with the students on a one-to-one basis, three hours a day, five days a week, at the center. One exception is Fred Allington who tutors special students who are unable to come to the center.

The Community Mental Health Center provides help to Spokaneites in three sections: adult and child clinics, and the Crisis Clinic. Due to a limited staff of professional personnel, much of the work is done by lay volunteers, said Dr. Jorgenson.

The volunteers must attend a year of training sessions before they are allowed to work with the people who come to the center.

Leasing May Reduce Rents

If private developers build apartments on land leased from Eastern the rental fees would be controlled by the college.

Fred Heinemann, director of auxiliary enterprises, said, "At present we think $50 per single student and $100 per couple would be fair rents to ask." Based on these rents four singles, said Heinemann, could live for $150 per quarter each and $120 per quarter for food each. This figure would be $10 less than students pay to live in dormitories now.

Married couples would be able to live on campus for as little as low-income families now pay, off-campus, Heinemann said.

'Statement'

"The Strawberry Statement," James Kunen's diary of events during the 1968 student protests at Columbia university, will be the subject of a special radio program tonight on KEWC-FM.

Rick O'Brien, station spokesman, said the program, scheduled to be aired tonight at 7:45 p.m., was especially prepared for radio by Columbia University's radio-television department and campus radio station.

KEWC-FM can be heard at 89.9 megahertz.

BSU Stays Active In Campus Life

With its growing membership and expanding activities, the Black Student Union is getting the year underway by participating in Eastern's Homecoming celebration, said James Bell, BSU president.

Members are currently selling papers published by the Black Panther party, as they did last year, to raise money to help cover the cost of a children's breakfast program established in the Seattle area, Bell said.

"The purpose of this program is to feed hungry children of the community who would otherwise have to go without breakfast." Since last year, the demand for such help has doubled, he said.

Another of the Black Student Union's Homecoming activities is the selection of a "Queen Mother." According to Bell, the organization will also participate in other social and political functions on campus.

Replacing last year's Black Week will be African Week, which will be held next spring. Also on the calendar of events is the Black Student Union's statewide convention which will be held at Eastern this winter, Bell said.

Besides Bell, other officers from last year include Muriel Delbert, communications secretary; Jackie Sepolen, administrative secretary; and Cleotis Ray, treasurer.

student, I am unaware of a multitude of gripes concerning Physical Education, or a majority of students who feel that Physical Education is of no use in their individual life styles. Therefore, I would resent being drawn into any personal or departmental conflicts and being "used" as a tool of force in any dispute.

2. Also, did those involved on the council feel they could not back up their arguments about student needs in physical Education substantially or effectively enough to convince the rest of the committee, while in the presence of those who have made it their life's profession to study and fulfill these needs?

I feel that this council's actions are questionable in ethics and procedure.

Policy Hit

Editor:

Your editorial of October 7, 1970, "Paper Stays Home", raises a few points I should like to take issue with.

Firstly, you correctly assume that the current trend in campus reporting does point to more extensive coverage of national political activities. A number of factors are contributing to the growth of this trend: A vibrant and new student interest and participation in political concerns, a politically-motivated national interest in colleges and college students among politicians and the general public, and an unusually large number of critical national issues that should be and are the concern of college-age youth.

It is my feeling, however, that you are mistaken when you fail to credit campus news services with their full potential. The Easterner can affect national affairs. Few would argue that race relations, the war in Indo-China, poverty, the draft, pollution, electoral reform, abortion reform, and higher education have not been affected by student interest and the student press throughout the nation.

Further, be reporting on national political issues, the Easterner would not be competing with the national press. The Easterner serves primarily the college community, not a national readership. The paper has a legitimate responsibility to report and editorialize newsworthy items of interest to its campus readers regardless of the nature of that news. The Easterner's task, I hope, is not to necessarily affect change, but to serve its readers.

I would hope that students are interested in national politics and social issues. The times more than any other demand responsible involvement and commitment regardless of the issue. Withdrawal has always been a poor second to involvement.

For the second time in the history of Eastern football a jersey number has been retired, never again to be worn on the football field. That number is "56", the jersey number of Little All-American offensive center Greg Gavin.

Gavin, a four year letter winner for the Savages, concluded a highly successful college football career last year and is a student assistant football coach with the Savages this year.

The tradition of retiring a number of an exceptional football player is one of the highest honors a team can pay to a member. It is an honor bestowed on few football players.

The only other Eastern football player to have his number retired is Mel Stanton, number "46". In 1965 Stanton was second in the nation in scoring and rushing in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. He was, like Gavin, named to the NAIA All-American first team at tailback. He is coaching and teaching in Guam now, after several years of coaching success at Monroe.

Gavin earned this tribute through four years of excellence and total dedication to the game. In addition to being named "Little All-American" by the NAIA last year, he has received numerous honors throughout his career at Eastern. As a junior he made the NAIA All-American second team, honorable mention in the Associated Press Little All American team, Little All-Northwest first team and NAIA District one first team.

Gavin, from Tonasket, will be honored in a half-time ceremony of Saturday's homecoming game.

If Gavin had a choice, he'd rather be playing this year than coaching.

"You see things out there that you'd like to do and you put yourself in their place," he said.

About his first year of coaching he sees a definite advantage in coaching a team he played for.

"I know what they're up against out there and I know what mistakes to watch out for, having played under the same system," he said.

Working with the offensive line Gavin is able to provide added help for his successor Chuck Lee. Gavin says Lee, a sophomore, is doing a good job at center, "...and with some experience he could be a great center."

"Coaching," he said, "is a whole new thing. There is so much more to think about. You have to look at it from a different standpoint."

So, jersey number "56" goes into permanent retirement. Perhaps retirement is premature, but no one can deny that this jersey has earned the right through dedication to the job, constant leadership and courage.

THE SAVAGE DEFENSE doing a job on Oregon College of Education two weeks ago at Woodward Stadium. Getting in on the action with other Savage defenders is Kerry Hawley (22). Eastern will be out in force this weekend against Whitworth in the Savages homecoming game. The Savages lead the EvCo by one game.

Savage Gridders Host Whitworth

Eastern's undefeated "Savages" have a chance to improve that commanding Evergreen Conference lead this Saturday when the Whitworth Priates come to Cheney for battle in Eastern's Homecoming at Woodward field.

Eastern's Homecoming game is just one of two scheduled league contests. The other conference game matches two second division teams — Eastern Oregon and Oregon Tech.

The Savages gained sole possession of first place in the Evergreen Conference last Saturday with a 20-14 win over Southern Oregon at Ashland.

Western Washington, who had shared the lead with Eastern, lost a non-conference game to Simon Fraser 7-0. The Vikings share second place with Central Washington with 2-0 records. Eastern is 3-0 in conference play and 4-0 for the season. Western and Central each have two non-conference losses.

Central defeated winless Whitworth 28-14 last Saturday.

Eastern's sensational running back Mel Collins accounted for two of the Savages three touchdowns against Southern Oregon. Collins scored on a one-yard run and a 72-yard punt return. Tommy Thompson scored the other TD on a three-yard run. Thompson, at quarterback, led the Savages throughout the game. He completed 11 of 20 passes for 118 yards, for a four-game total of 26 completions for 53 attempts, just over 50 per cent.

Southern Oregon scored on a 37-yard pass play from Bill Atwood to Craig Johnson and a 70-yard pass interception scoring run by Bill Standley.

It was inevitable that an Oregon team get in the win column in Evergreen Conference play as two of the four Oregon newcomers met in a conference game. Oregon

College of Education won their first conference game over winless Oregon Tech 41-12. The win boosts Oregon C. of E. to fourth place in the eight team league with 1-2, behind Eastern Washington 3-0 and Central Washington and Western Washington 2-0 in league play. Whitworth, Oregon Tech and Eastern Oregon are all winless in conference action.

While the Savages host Whitworth in Eastern's homecoming, University of Puget Sound is at Western, Central is at Portland State and Oregon College of Education travels to Canada to meet Simon Fraser.

Fire To Run

A marathon run from Whitworth to Eastern is being held Friday night beginning at 9 and ending at midnight at a Homecoming pep rally at Woodward Field.

Clint Hill, Associated Students president, will run the first half-mile and Football Coach Brent Wooten will run the last with a torch that will be used to light the pep rally bonfire.

There will be some 60 students running during the marathon, said Herb Jones, A.S. activities vice-president. "The Washington State Patrol has okayed running along the freeway," he said.

Volunteers for the half-mile legs are asked to meet in the lounge of Anderson Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m., said Jones.

JV Basketball Coach Readies For Season

Wed., Oct. 14, 1970

Ron Vlasin rounds out Eastern's basketball big-three this year. Vlasin has been hired to head up the frosh basketball program. He will work under Dr. Jerry Krause, head coach, and his top assistant Ron Raver.

Vlasin was head basketball coach for four years at Merino High School in Merino, Colorado, before joining the Eastern staff.

Ron Vlasin

He will work toward his M.A. degree while at Eastern.

"I hope to get experience in coaching college ball to decide if I want to take on coaching on the college level."

Vlasin played college ball under his new superior, Dr. Krause, while at Colorado State College.

At Merino his school compiled the top basketball prep record in the state with 73-wins and 8-losses, for a .901 percent. Under his guidance the Merino Rams won two straight Class "A" Colorado high school championships. His team had two 22-0 seasons, for 44 consecutive wins, a Colorado state record.

The system at Eastern is similar to that he used at Merino, Vlasin said. "We also used a fast break offense and a full or three-quarter press pressure type defense," he said. "Coach Krause is well organized and the basketball program here is as good as possible with the means available."

The Savage frosh will have a tough schedule including games with Washington State frosh, Gonzaga frosh and Montana frosh, but Eastern has attracted some outstanding freshman prospects for the season which gets under way in seven weeks.

The top local recruit is Logan Bladwin, 6-1, 180 pound guard from Mead high school. Baldwin averaged 16-points and five assists a game last year to earn a position of the Border League All Conference team.

Two forwards from Columbia River High School at Vancouver, Washington, are John Brennon and Brad Lothspeich who made their high school all conference team. Brennon and Lothspeich are both 6'3".

A product of Columbia High school and the highly regarded Art Dawald fast break system (Dawald retired as head coach at Col. Hi after many years of success) is Dan Cartmel, 5'10", 160 pound guard from Richland.

Another pair of top prospects are Scott Curran and Chuck Schumacher both guards from Mercer Island.

Mike Fredrickson, 6-1, 160 pounds, was "most valuable player" last year at Kettle Falls. Wayne Herzog, 6-5, 200 pounder is from Bellingham, where he holds the All-time rebound-single game record.

David Kautz of Merino, Colorado, joins his former high school coach at Eastern. He made All-State two years in a row at Merino. Other Coloradoans to join Vlasin are Ura Sippial, 6-6, 197 pounds from Manuel High School, Denver, and Tom Straight, 6-1, 180 pounds, from Bethoud, Colorado.

Sam Leavitt, 6-4, 194 pounds, from Chemawa, Oregon, is another outstanding frosh prospect.

There are a number of other hopefuls to round out the Eastern frosh basketball team for the 1970-71 season under new frosh coach.

Funds Alloted

For the first time in Eastern's history the Associated Students have allocated $6,535 for campus recreation.

This money will be used in the intramural and recreation activities provided by the campus recreation department, according to Thorne L. Tibbitts, campus recreation director.

The money will be used to finance the intramural program with approximately $1,300 being used for equipment. This means Eastern students will be able to check out equipment to use on an individual and dorm activity basis, for the first time.

Tibbitts also said that $3,689 has been allotted for the payment of officials and lifeguards in the intramural and recreation program.

Intramural Play Gets Underway

Eastern's intramural flag football is in full swing with 24 teams. The games are played Monday thru Thursday at 3:50 and 4:50 p.m.

The intramural bowling program got under way yesterday with leagues bowling at 9 p.m. There is also a bowling league on Wednesdays at 3:45. The Tuesday night league is filled but more teams are needed for the Wednesday afternoon league. Anyone who is interested may contact Jim Dyck at the Cheney Bowl.

The deadline for tennis has been moved back to Friday, October 16. Up to now there are not too many teams signed up, so anyone is interested in tennis must sign up before Friday, if by that time not enough people have signed up the program will be eliminated for this fall.

The cross country race, which was to be held on Saturday, in conjunction with homecoming, has been changed to November 24 and is to be held in conjunction with the Thanksgiving holiday. More information will be forthcoming on this event, according to Thorne L. Tibbitts, director of campus recreation.

Volleyball sign-ups for women have been changed to October 21, but the men's sign up date remains at November 4.

Women's field hockey will get under way as soon as enough girls sign up. They are presently meeting on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Girls interested should contact Miss Parsons in Fieldhouse 12.

Eastern Participates In Central Invitational

Eastern will enter a seven-man cross country team in the Central Washington Invitational Meet Saturday morning in Ellensburg.

Savage coach Arnie Pelluer said the race will be on a new 6.5 mile course over the hills near CWSC. More than 17 teams are expected to enter.

Eastern finished a surprising second to host Washington State University at the WSU Invitational October 3, edging the University of Idaho by one point on a third place finish by Bob Maplestone, freshman from South Wales, and a sixth by Portland junior Barry Jahn.

Maplestone and Jahn and four other Eastern team finishers, Pat Moses, Spokane junior from Rogers High; Joe Ross, Spokane junior from Ferris, and freshman cousins, Bruce and Steve Thornton from Tonasket, will be on the Eastern team, Pelluer said.

Seventh man will be either Dave Musson, freshman from Ferris, or Mike Johnson, senior from Rainier Beach.

Kids Have Day Of Fun On Campus

Children from St. Joseph's Orphanage in Spokane will spend November 7 at Eastern thanks to the fund raising efforts of eight students this week.

All members of the Bachelors Club, the men are participating in their annual "Speak Week" drive to raise funds to bring boys from the orphanage for Parent's Day, said Allan Sherwin, senior and chairman of the drive.

"We call the annual drive 'Speak Week' because it's a time when we ask students and faculty to speak out with their money for a cause we believe they should support," Sherwin said.

"Last year we raised more than $400 and we're hoping to top that this week," he added. "We'll use the money to bring about 25 boys out for lunch, dinner, a Savage football game against Western Washington State College and a varsity basketball game."

Sherwin said any funds not needed for Parent's Day go into the orphanage Christmas fund.

Dryden Gets Bomb Threat

Threat of a potential bomb evacuated Dryden Hall Monday night at about midnight, just after the Classics IV concert in the Fielhouse.

President Emerson C. Shuck said of the telephoned threat, "If this is humor, it is perverted humor. If it is not humor, then it is paranoid."

A search of the building revealed no bomb. This is the first such threat of the 1970-71 academic year, although several such calls were placed during spring quarter.

Ducks Temporarily Safe

Turnbull Wildlife Refuge is not open to hunting this fall, according to United States Sports, Fish and Wildlife authorities, but a final decision on refuge hunting has been delayed until next year.

Turnbull is a 17,000 acre estate for waterfowl and wildlife located southwest of Cheney. It is a nesting and feeding facility for migrant waterfowl.

Over a year ago the initial proposal to hunt the area was brought up by a number of sportsmen's associations in Spokane County as waterfowl hunting declined.

The proposal stood for 10 per cent opening of the western region of the area, approximately 1,700 acres, said Dr. Frank Nicols, chairman of Eastern's biology department. But the 10 per cent includes 30 per cent of all water available to wild fowl, he said.

Sportsmen's associations in Spokane and some local game officials are confident that the refuge will be opened, Dr. Nicols said, but there is no evidence from DROPPING EGGS from windows, students in industrial technology test their designs for transporting eggs without breaking them. Tom Rulfes, left, tests his project from the second story window of Cheney Hall (according to the project rules, the container should not be overdesigned—if the egg withstood a two-story fall, it failed). Bill Edwards, center, didn't make it either—the egg was to withstand an eight-foot drop. Russell Boxes, right, makes a successful indoor test of his design made of wire and rubber bands.

Industrial Arts Puts Problems To Students

Little did the chicken know her eggs would be the whipping stones of an industrial arts design class, headed by Dr. Waldo D. Martin, associate professor of industrial education and technology.

Each student in Dr. Martin's class was to design an egg-cradling container which would protect an egg from the impact of an eight foot fall.

No rules were made as to what materials could be used in the design, Dr. Martin said. The only stipulation was for the student not to over-design his container so that if it were heaved from a two-story window the egg would break.

A score of innovative designs were made. Russ Boyles designed his cradle from a coat hanger and suspended a small box within the wire frame, stabilizing it with rubber bands and string.

"This particular design was taken from a similar technique designed to transport nitrogen," Blyles said.

"I first tried to envelope my egg in jello, then popcorn, but they didn't work," said Tom Kelly. In his final design he decided upon a man's sock suspended within a cardboard box. Similar design was that of Gary Terwilliger, who, instead of a sock, suspended a large capsule container on rubber bands.

Carter Barns came up with the old baseball trick. He took a plastic baseball, filled it with foam rubber, placed the egg in the ball surrounding the ball with foam rubber. The only problem was that the egg broke at it's eight foot test.

This particular exercise is strongly related to shipping techniques in industry, Dr. Martin said and was specifically designed for students to acquire a philosophy in basic design.
